Are the Gospels Full of Contradictions? Jonathan Morrow

This portion of Jonathan Morrow's Questioning the Bible: 11 Major Challenges to the Bible's Authority presents a reasonable response to the claim that the Gospels are full of contradictions. Even a quick comparison of the four New Testament Gospels reveals that there are apparent discrepancies, disagreements, and some would argue flat out contradictions among the accounts.

Maybe you've wrestled with how to reconcile the fact that Jesus' words are recounted one way in Matthew and another in Mark when it is clear that they are attempting to describe the very same event. What do you do with that?

- Were the Gospel writers concerned with writing accurate history?
- Are the "red letters" in my Bible the exact words of Jesus?
- Was chronology important to ancient writers?
- Was oral tradition a reliable way to pass on history?

This e-Book gives you the historical context and answers you need to know in order to thoughtfully respond to those who have objections to the reliability of the Gospels and grow your confidence in God's Word.
